

Celebrating the 100th year of the quintessential Italian aperitivo cocktail, the Negroni, Hidden Bar puts on a tasting extravaganza that you simply must saunter in to experience - but only for a week - this week!

It's hip, it's cool, and it's totally unique - equal thirds of gin, red vermouth, and Campari: done!

Ah, but not so fast!

Not just any gin...

And not just any bar...

Hidden Bar is one of the Rosewood's tucked-away watering holes, for the discerning guest.

And for the occasion presenting a little sliver of smoked salmon, steeped in Negroni, of course!

There's always a pleasant surprise at Hidden Bar...

...a little way to say thank-you for stopping by for a sip!

The Negronis multiplied, as the bartenders expanded their repertoire with novel variations of the world-famous cocktail - prosecco instead of the gin, to lighten things up but still keep you merry; a splash of cheeky soda for it to become Americano; and who knows what other magic goes in!

All in all, a wonderful way to get together and have a good time - no excuse needed for that at Hidden Bar, but a week-long festival of the Negroni is an apt reminder that life is for celebrating!

Cheers!
